—A local newspaper is the great medium of exchange in the place in which it is published. It is the fountain head to which all resort for news. It is the chief instrument by which buyers and sellers, merchants and public, are brought into business relations with each other. It stands for knowledge, good morals, and progress, and is in the forefront of every movement to further the best interests of the community. By former citizens, who have made new homes in other places, it is welcomed as a regular news-letter that keeps them in sympathetic touch with the old home they still love and keeps green tender memories of the past.

Ohio Happenings

Fremont.—While reading a newspaper, Horace Schaeffer, a Civil war veteran and farmer, was stricken with heart failure and died.

Lorain.—Charles V. Gossor, 81, retired contractor, died here after an illness of two years. He was born at Leicester, England, and had been a resident of this country for 60 years.

Toledo.—Brand Whitlock, mayor of this city, was taken suddenly ill with appendicitis and was removed to St. Vincent's hospital, where, following a turn for the worse, a consultation of physicians was called, and an operation was performed by Dr. Peter Donnelly. Mr. Whitlock was reported as resting easily and condition good.

Toledo.—William J. Quinlan of Cleveland, who was arrested for luring May Reilly and Ruth Tiffany from their homes there and bringing them to a Toledo resort under pretense of finding them a good position, was fined $200 on two charges of assault preferred by the girls in police court January 16. Six-month workhouse sentence accompany each charge. It will take Quinlan over three years to serve the entire sentence if he stays at the workhouse.

"Quinlan hit me in the mouth when I refused to give him money," testified Miss Tiffany.

Cleveland.—The speedy coming of the great revolution was prophesied by Emma Goldman, exponent of anarchy, at a meeting of Anarchists and sympathizers here. Royal hall, where the meeting was held, was filled by a great crowd of Jewish speaking people, who listened feverishly to the glowing word picture of freedom, drawn by the speaker. Miss Goldman's lecture on "The Eternal Spirit of the Revolution," made the deepest impression, and late in the evening the feeling grew so intense that anti-anarchists who attempted to gain a hearing were hooted and jeered and would not have been allowed the privilege of the floor but for the intervention of Miss Goldman. The lecture was in the Jewish tongue. While in Cleveland Miss Goldman spoke to about 1,500 people and circulated thousands of pieces of anarchist literature.

Zanesville.—Herbert Vandusen, 27, playing juvenile roles with the Elmore Otis Co., under the name of Carlisle, was fatally burned by an explosion of a gas stove in his room. Vandusen is a Christian Scientist and refuses medical aid.

Sandusky.—Charles Ruff, 29, engineer of this city, was arrested and put in jail on a charge of committing an assault upon Miss Rose Truett of Milan when she was alone and sick in bed. The Truett family is one of the most respected in Milan. Miss Truett's father, Edward Truett, will prosecute the case.

Chardon.—Harry Lamb, 30, of Burton, lost three fingers on his right hand while cutting fodder. His hand was drawn into the machine. The accident occurred on the Doolittle farm near Burton.

Ashtabula.—Miss Pruda Cutwright of Jefferson, O., is dead and Mrs. Leon Adams and her son Roger, 51, of Pierpont, this county, perhaps fatally injured as the result of a grade crossing accident in Denmark township.

Greenwich.—Though in his ninety-second year Gideon B. Coutant is overseeing a farm, taking care of a cow and doing other chores that would keep a man of 40 pretty busy and make him a tired man before daylight.

Findlay.—The Carpenter's union has given notice that beginning April 1, the price per hour for which the men will work has been raised from 45 cents per hour to 60 cents. Eight hours will also constitute a day's work. It is said that as a result of this there will be little building here this summer.

Columbus.—Police courts in playing politics with cases of illegal sale of cocaine encourage violations of that law. This is the direct charge made in the joint report of the state board of pharmacy filed. This organization has been prosecuting a series of violations of the cocaine law in Cleveland police court. It is understood the board is working up evidence in cases in which prosecutions are to be instituted within a short time. The report also states that the majority of police court cases are due to the use of this drug. The habit, says the report, is gaining recruits among the youth of both sexes. It is responsible alike for crime and insanity, is the charge.

Sandusky.—Sanduskians generally believe that the enumerators upon whose compilations the census department announced a population of 19,989, only 325 more than it was ten years ago, overlooked between 1,500 and 2,000 persons who should have been listed. Already an effort is under way to have the Sandusky Business Men's association appropriate a sufficient sum out of its contingent fund to meet the expenses of an independent enumeration.

Portsmouth.—Now that his birthplace, Adams county, has been purged of her election dishonesty, Judge A. Z. Blair has transferred his operations to this county, which became his home shortly after his election to the bench four years ago. He made public announcement that a probe of local election affairs would begin immediately upon the convening of the Scioto county grand jury.

East Liverpool.—Judge James Martin, 59, died at Lisbon, following a brief illness. He was probate judge of Columbiana county from 1903 till 1909, before that mayor of Lisbon.

Foley's Kidney Remedy an Appreciation.

McConnell, Catherine St. Elmir, N. Y., writes: "I wish to express my appreciation of the great good I derived from Foley's Kidney Remedy, which I used for a bad case of kidney trouble. Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken. F. A. Morris, Canfield.

October 1, 1910—BattleShip New Hampshire, 29 drowned.

January 17, 1911—BattleShip Delaware, eight killed.

Total Deaths, 438.

North, Va., Jan. 15—Eight dead, 17 slightly hurt and one seriously injured. This is the story of an exploding boiler on board the battleship Delaware.

The accident happened at nine o'clock, January 17, while the ship was making her way up the coast in the teeth of a blinding snow storm and a 30-mile northwest gale. The dead are:

Charles Henry Harp, fireman.

William Morris White, fireman.

Columbus Porter Watts, fireman.

Herbert Anderson Brewer, fireman.

Lewis Addison White, coal passer.

Clarence DeWitt, coal passer.

Christian Jensen, water tender.

One unidentified boy.

The only men of the injured expected to die is Eugene Phillips, a fireman who was horribly scalded while endeavoring to get out of the fire room with his more fortunate shipmates who escaped with slight scalds.

The Delaware was just rounding Cape Hatteras in a heavy snow storm when three back headers of one of her four boilers blew out, the steam and hot water enveloping the men like a sudden cloudburst and scalded them to death.

CAPT. GOVE SENDS WORD.

Washington.—The following was received from Captain Gove of the battleship Delaware, describing the accident on that vessel at sea on the way to Hampton Roads where she has just arrived.

"At 9:20 A. M., January 17, three back headers of boiler O in fire room No. 4, blew out explosively, killing eight and injuring one who will probably die, these being all the men on duty in that fire room."

A board of officers was immediately appointed to investigate and report. It has not yet completed its examination. The extent of the damage is ten back headers injured in boiler O. We will have need of ten new back headers and probably a corresponding number of tubes. The cause of the damage is yet to be ascertained."

That only eight men were killed due solely to the fact that most of the fire room crew were working around the other boilers and furnaces when the explosion occurred and were not close enough to the bursting boiler to be seriously hurt.

The Usual Affection.

"What a very affecting piece, my dear," remarked the husband, as they returned from the suburban theater the other night. "I suppose there wasn't a dry eye in the house."

"I observed, however," said the wife, "that there seemed to be the usual number of dry throats."—Tid-Bits.

"Where did you get the inspiration for your dream of fair women?" "I fell asleep over a magazine," explained the famous poet. "I had just been looking over the corset ads."

CHILDREN'S SAYINGS.

"When I grow up," said a six-year old child, "I want to be a day or two."

Little Johnny witnessed a military drill. One of the officers rode a horse which was very unruly, and in some of his antics nearly threw his rider whereupon little Johnny exclaimed excitedly, "Mamma, mamma, Mr. Fie's horse don't fit him!"

A little boy, four and a half years old, was taken to the shoemaker's shop to get his boots half-soled. He watched the shoemaker very closely while he was fitting the last, and finally said: "I am afraid it will be hard to find one the right age for my boots."

Mamie was commanded—"Sit down, and be still, for the present." She obeyed with expectant air. After awhile she said: "I've been still a good while; where is the present?"

Willie A. came in one day with mud upon his jacket which his mother commenced to brush off, saying: "Oh, you are but a jump of dust anyway." Willie asked: "Are we all made of dust?" His mother said "Yes." He replied, "Well, I think you must have been made out of different dust than anybody I ever saw."

Marion visited her auntie, who made some molasses candy for her in a spider, a name given by New England people to an iron frying pan. She went home and told her mother, "Auntie made me some candy in a bug." Seeing her mother's perplexity, she soon corrected herself, "In a spider, then."

"Can you give me an example of a toothless animal of the mammalian group?" asked the teacher of a small boy in the class in zoology. "Yes, sir," said the boy, very promptly. "Indeed! What is it?" My grandma!

"You have broken the Sabbath, Johnny," said a good man, and his little girl interrupted reproachfully, "Yes, and mother's long comb, too."

A Sunday school teacher gave an address, at the close of which he said, "Now, children, any questions you wish to ask I will answer." Immediately a little girl arose and said, "My pa would like to know who'll be next Preesenden."

"Oh, what a charming plant!" exclaimed a visitor, and his hostess replied, "Yes, it belongs to the begonia family." "Why no," said the young girl, "it belongs to the Brown family, and they lent it to us for the evening."

A little boy came to this sentence in his reading lesson: "There is a worm; do not tread on him." He read it thus, to his teacher's great surprise: "There is a warm doughnut; tread on him."

HAD PLENTY OF MONEY BUT STARVED TO DEATH

The following dispatch from Cleveland under date of Jan. 7 will be of interest to Mahoning county people who knew the unfortunate woman: The death from starvation of Mrs. Susannah Drum, 76 years old, at the City Infirmary last night, brought to light the story of an aged woman who for two years lived in a small, squalid, windowless room, clothed herself in rags and finally starved herself to death in order to save every penny that was within her grasp. On Dec. 29, on complaint of neighbors of her queer actions, she was taken before Probate Judge Hadden to be examined as to her sanity. But the old woman was so ill and weak that she was sent to the infirmary. She was supposed to be penniless, but after death came there was found in a cloth bag around her neck $150 in bills, two blank books calling for several hundred dollars and a mortgage on a farm at Berlin, Ohio. At the infirmary the dying woman hinted about wealth in the trunk in her room and also told of a will there made in favor of her brother, J. E. Gilbert of Churubusco, Ind. This was thought to be the talk of a demented woman. However, last night it was found that the trunk in her room had been broken into while she was at the infirmary and rifled.

The public have started an investigation. Mrs. Drum, who was the widow of Sergeant William C. Drum, Co. E, Forty-First Ohio Volunteer Infantry, has been three times married and had toured the world several times with one of her husbands. Between one of the marriages and under her maiden name of Susannah Gilbert, she traveled several seasons with circuses with a trained 'coon.
